

A VISIT FROM EAST ANGLIA UNIVERSITY (UK)

On Thursday, July 23, 2018, Dr Liliana Harding, the International Exchange Coordinator at the University of East Anglia, visited our university. During her visiting a meeting was held with Professor Terui (Dean, Graduate School of Economics and Management), Professor Hibiki (Vice Dean, Graduate School of Economics and Management), Professor Furuya (Global Program of Economics and Management), Professor Matsuda (Center for Data Science and Service Research) and Professor Suematsu from the Global Learning Center (Deputy Director) and an active discussion was held on student exchange.

The University of East Anglia, founded in 1963, is a UK national university head-quartered in Norfolk, Norwich. Most academic disciplines in the university are consistently ranked among the top 25 in the UK. In particular, the School of International Development offers a wide range of courses and is highly evaluated both domestically and abroad.

It is hoped that collaboration between the two universities will enhance further relations in the future.

After the meeting, Dr Harding visited the Kawauchi campus library, interacted with students at the International Exchange OASIS and experienced the efforts by Tohoku University for internationalization.
